Stranger Things Prologue

(The Police – Every breath you take)

Mike and Eleven were happy hugging while they were dancing, after that kiss they knew that everything would be fine, Mike finally had in his arms that girl who stole his heart, he felt he had lost her forever, that was always his biggest fear , after all, when he met her he feared that they would come closer, when they approached, he feared that he would like it, when he started to like him he was afraid to feel love for her, but after what happened almost a year ago, having lost her, he knew that he loved Eleven, for her part, she felt complete, now if she felt at home surrounded by friends who loved her and appreciated her, she was now in the arms of the boy who taught her the goodness of life and to find happiness. Maybe she had lost her father, maybe her mother did not recognize her, maybe she left her sister Eighth or Kali behind, but now she felt complete, happy, she had a father figure who loved her and some friends who appreciated her, maybe she regretted it. to not have a real family, but he felt happy, nothing else mattered, now I just wanted to enjoy that night in the Snowball being in the arms of that boy who made his heart beat quickly, nothing else mattered, for now.

While everyone was enjoying the winter dance, the world changed to make way for a different version, a world that many call "The Upside Down" was a dark version of the real world, perhaps also called the underworld, a huge cloud of storm settled on the dark version of the school where the kids went, in the sky you could see the dark figure of the Mind Flayer that covered the sky with its red lightning and watched the school, or in specific to the figure that was on the roof of the school that, like the one, gave off a blue energy throwing rays that met the red rays of the Mind Flayer while both roared loudly while that figure, which was that of a person, pointed at the Mind Flayer.

Note: From now on they will appear in parentheses names of songs that I will use to acclimate the reading, it would be like the soundtracks in the scenes, also later there will be additional content using the characters of the series.

I want to tell both the new ones and the old readers of my stories that I upload images that I use to base myself, the links of the images will be in my Fanfiction profile.
